

INTRODUCTION

The Illinois Uniform Crime Reporting Program

The Illinois Uniform Crime Reporting Program was developed in 1971 and implemented on January 1, 1972. The Illinois State Police was given the responsibility to act as the central repository for collecting crime statistics.

Reporting crime statistics is mandated by Chapter 20 Illinois Compiled Statutes 2630/8.

2630/8. Crime Statistics. The Department shall be a central repository and custodian of crime statistics for the State and it shall have all power incident thereto to carry out the purposes of this Act, including the power to demand and receive cooperation in the submission of crime statistics from all units of government.

Reporting agencies submit data on a monthly basis to the Uniform Crime Reporting Program. Participating jurisdictions include villages, municipalities, counties, colleges, universities, park districts, railroads, forest preserves, hospitals, and other miscellaneous agencies throughout Illinois.

Crime index offenses, crime index arrests, and drug arrests are required to be reported by local law enforcement agencies. In April 1996, the Illinois State Police began the collection of additional crime statistics mandated by state statute. These include: Domestic Violence, Attacks Against School Personnel, and Hate Crimes. Crimes Against Children are also being voluntarily reported to the Uniform Crime Reporting Program.

Please note, the 1997 figures reflected in this publication are not comparable with those figures published in Crime in Illinois 1997 due to late and/or adjusted data.

Considerations for Interpretation

When comparing the crime statistics of one agency with another, many factors should be taken into consideration before conclusions are made. Some of the conditions affecting the type and volume of crime are:

- Population density and degree of urbanization.
- Variations in composition of the population, particularly youth concentration.
- Stability of population with respect to residents' mobility, commuting patterns and transient factors.
- Modes of transportation and highway system.
- Economic conditions, including median income, poverty level and job availability.
- Cultural factors and educational, recreational and religious characteristics.
- Family conditions with respect to divorce and family cohesiveness.
- Climate.
- Effective strength of law enforcement agencies.
- Administrative and investigative emphases of law enforcement.
- Policies of other components of the criminal justice system (i.e., prosecutorial, judicial, correctional and probational).
- Citizens' attitudes toward crime.
- Crime reporting practices of citizenry.¹

When analyzing I-UCR statistics, direct agency-to-agency comparisons should be guarded against. Such comparisons could be misleading unless demographic differences between jurisdictions are taken into account. Every community has a unique social, ethnic, and economic configuration which may affect its crime statistics. These dissimilarities may bias the results of any comparative analysis between agencies. A jurisdiction's crime situation is complex and cannot always be treated superficially, as it might be in direct agency-to-agency comparisons.

In general, the decision to use any indicator for analysis purposes must be made with care. The I-UCR indicators discussed within this publication have utility for law enforcement administrators; however, they must be used with caution. No single indicator is a panacea for crime analysis. Instead, decisions that law enforcement administrators are called upon to make require a multifaceted analytical approach.

The Crime Index

Most of the offense and arrest statistics in this publication focus primarily on what is known as the Crime Index. The eight crime categories that make up this index, when taken together, provide some indication of how much serious crime has occurred in the jurisdiction, region, or state. Four of the index crimes in the I-UCR Program are violent crimes - murder, criminal sexual assault, robbery, and aggravated assault - and four are property crimes - burglary, larceny/theft, motor vehicle theft, and arson.

The index crimes translate into the national program's eight Crime Index offenses as:

Violent Crimes

Murder and Nonnegligent Manslaughter - The willful killing of a person or the death of a person caused by gross negligence of an individual other than the victim.

Forcible Rape - The carnal knowledge of a female, forcibly and against her will - includes attempted rape. Illinois reports criminal sexual assault offenses rather than rape offenses under this category.

Robbery - The taking or attempting to take anything of value from the care, custody, or control of a person or persons by force or threat of force or violence - includes attempted robbery.

Aggravated Assault - The intentional causing of serious bodily harm or the intentional attempt or threat of serious bodily injury or death - includes aggravated battery, attempted murder and ritual mutilation.

Property Crimes

Burglary - The unlawful entry of a structure to commit a felony or theft - includes attempted burglary.

Theft - The unlawful taking or stealing of property or articles without the use of force, violence, or fraud - includes burglary from motor vehicle and attempts.

Motor Vehicle Theft - The unlawful taking or stealing of a motor vehicle - includes attempted motor vehicle theft.

Arson - The willful or malicious burning or attempts to burn, with or without intent to defraud, a dwelling house, public building or any building, motor vehicle, aircraft, or personal property of another.

The Crime Rate

The crime rate indicates the volume of crime occurring within a given population. It is defined as the total number of index crimes per 100,000 inhabitants and is calculated as follows:

$$\frac{\text{Crime Index} \times 100,000}{\text{jurisdictional population}} = \text{crime rate}$$

The jurisdictional population can be that of a city, town, village, state, or nation.

The Percent Change

The percent change indicates the increase or decrease of the volume of data represented.
